THE WOMAN WAKES UP 27 YEARS LATER

1 It was an ordinary day in the life of Munira Abdulla, a woman from the United Arab
2 Emirates (UAE). Her brother-in-law was driving and they were on the way to school
3 to pick up Munira's son. Munira and Omar, then only 4, were sitting in the back seat.
4 Suddenly, Munira hugged Omar tightly when she noticed that they were about to 5 collide with a bus.

6 Unfortunately, a terrible accident happened. Omar survived with almost no problems
7 while the accident left Munira seriously injured. Ms. Abdulla was taken to hospital,
8 and then transferred to London. She was declared to be in a vegetative state. She was 9 unresponsive but able to sense pain. She was then returned to Al Ain of the UAE and 10 moved to various medical facilities. She was fed through a tube, which kept her alive.

11 In 2017, thanks to a grant by a government body of Abu Dhabi, she was transferred
12 to Germany, where she underwent a number of surgeries and was given medication
13 to improve her state. One day, Omar heard her making strange sounds and told it to 14 doctors. According to doctors, everything was normal. 3 days later, Omar woke up to 15 the sound of someone calling his name and verses from the Quran. Omar was flying
16 with joy. It was the moment of his dreams. Ever since that day, Munira has been 17 going through a rapid recovery. She can now join family life and still works hard to get 18 healthier.

- ☐ a Munira had to travel a lot.
- ☐ b Omar noticed the change in his mother.
- ☐ c Munira tried to protect Omar.
- ☐ d The dream of Omar came true.
- ☐ e Munira set off for school.

It was a warm Saturday evening of April, with 21°C outside.The atmosphere at the stadium was amazing besides the weather. All the tickets were sold out. Waterloo Stadium was ready to host the cup final game. Waterloo was the home team.

The Waterloo team started the game badly, so theyconceded a goal in the 21st minute of the game. Therefore, the Waterloo team players got demoralized, and the fans felt disappointed. Meanwhile, the Waterloo coach was following the game carefully and discussing it with his assistants. He noticed the weaknesses. First, he changed the tactic. The footballers managed to carry out the fresh tactics successfully. The fans did not quit cheering for their team. They kept shouting chants. They were trying to push the team. Everyone was working hard. The coach made effective substitutions. The game cl ock was running fast. The footballers kept fighting as well. In the end, the goals came for Waterloo, and they won the game together with the cup. It was a breathtaking game of football and will remain unforgettable to me.
